RUMFORD AND BETHEL STREET RAILWAY ASSURED.

Charter Granted without Burdensome Conditions.

Next Step Is Settlement of Land Damages. Over 60 Claimants.

The charter of the Rumford and Bethel Street Railway Co. was granted by the railroad commissioners Saturday. No conditions were imposed upon the company other than was set forth in the petition. Regarding arrangements for crossing the bridge at the falls, no decision was made. That will be settled later.

The incorporators of the road will next proceed to settle land damages. They have sixty or more claims to meet, and as they are going to personally see each claimant, considerable time will be taken up in this work.

It is commonly understood that a general disposition prevails among the claimants to aid the road in every possible way, and it is hoped that no delay will occur in this work.

WATCH THE RUMFORD CITIZEN GROW.

200 a Week Is not too Slow.

This is a paper which need not be given to any of our friends, for we are sure that everybody who has been reading it for a week or two, and who is not simply saying that just because we are growing somewhat, it is a good thing, but that it is a paper which is worth reading, and which is worth the money paid for it.

The first issue of the Rumford Citizen was published last week, and it was a success. It was a success in every way, and it was a success in every way. It was a success in every way, and it was a success in every way.

FLAGG VS. PERRY.

The case of John Flagg, who sued Perry, both of Mexico, for money of cost of building a stone wall on the defendant's premises, lower end of the falls, was referred to R. L. Taylor and E. O. Eaton, who heard the case in the court room Friday. They will probably not render a decision before the October sitting of the court. Gleason and Blanchard for Flagg, and Bisbee and Parker for Perry.

BOARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the many friends who have been so generous in their help in the recent illness and death of my wife, was so kind to me. I also wish to acknowledge the kindness of those who have been so kind to me. To them all I extend my heartfelt thanks.

CROPS IN RUMFORD.

E. J. Morton and Florus Bartlett were in town this week and reported to the CITIZEN that crops are looking more favorable than it is generally supposed. There will be a shortage of sweet corn, but other crops did fair well about as usual.

The visitors were met at the station by the Rumford Encampment, and they were taken to the Rumford Hotel. They were then taken to the Rumford Hotel. They were then taken to the Rumford Hotel.

THE SCHUBERT MALE QUARTETTE.

Made the Rumford High School Commencement A Notable Event.

An Evening's Entertainment of Exceptional Worth.

The commencement concert that ushered in the Rumford High School graduation exercises occurred at the Cheney Opera House Thursday evening, June 13th. Prof. D. T. Hathorne, who had the matter in charge, had assured the CITIZEN that it was to be "the concert" of the season, and in point of excellence and display of talent by the members of the Schubert Male Quartette, and Mr. Charles T. Grilley, the entertainer, it proved to be all that was expected of it.

The quartette was made up as follows: Robert Martin, first tenor; Charles W. Swaine, second tenor; William W. Walker, baritone; Dr. George R. Clark, basso, all of Boston. The selections rendered were received with the most hearty applause possible, and the quartette were obliged to respond to numerous encores.

The various solos sung by different members were also encores, and the appreciation of the audience was very pronounced throughout the evening.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Charles Dunton, son of H. C. Dunton, Shot in the Left Arm.

Last Friday night Charles Dunton, young son of H. C. Dunton, barely escaped being fatally shot. He and young Archie Putnam were at the home of the Putnam boy cleaning their rifles. The latter had cleaned and loaded his gun, and was about to put it away when in some unaccountable manner it was discharged, the bullet passing through Dunton in the left wrist, passing through and plunging across his breast leaving a flesh wound, and then going through the muscle of his right arm, taking with it a piece of the muscle as large as a walnut. It was a very narrow escape, for the bullet came dangerously near the heart.

FOOT OF SNOW

Fell In this Latitude on June 11, 1842. But little Damage Done to Crops.

Regarding the weather, men are very forgetful. Under the influence of one good sunny day the storms and clouds of a week's time are forgotten. The general idea that this is a season that never has had a duplicate arises from the fact that we do so easily forget. It may be true that this season has been more cloudy and hence more disagreeable than some of the former cold springs. Several men have told the CITIZEN that seasons very nearly as backward as this have occurred during the last twenty years. While we do not recall such seasons, we are disposed to credit the statement. It is a matter of record that on June 11, 1842 a heavy storm occurred in this latitude throughout Maine and New Hampshire. In Berlin, N. H., a foot of the white crystals covered the ground. It is said by men who remember the time that the snow melted quickly and did but little damage to the crops. 1859 was a season of many cold days and Henry W. Park of Mexico has recorded in his diary the fact that it was so cold on the Fourth of July that year that he was forced to wear mittens on his hands while at work on Mann's Hill in that town. In the early part of the nineteenth century there were several seasons so cold that but very little garden stuff was raised in the state of Maine, but in view of the fact that the cold spell is broken and that garden stuff has made some progress we do not share the fears expressed by many that this will be a season of crop failure.

RUMFORD HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT DAY.

Able Sermon by Rev. Fred M. Preble of Auburn.

Remarks by Prof. Hathorne and Supt. Chase. Six Diplomas Conferred.

Friday night an interested gathering of the friends of the Rumford High School graduating class assembled in the Cheney Opera House and listened to a commencement address by Rev. Fred M. Preble, and witnessed the conferring of diplomas upon the following members of the class of '07: Willard Dana Burditt, William Bailey Carroll, Claude Hall Gilpatrick, Marian Specht Kimball, Richmond Loring Melcher, Jr., Ada Elsie Robbins.

Rev. H. L. Hanson offered prayer, and then Prof. D. T. Hathorne, principal of the High School, introduced Rev. Fred M. Preble of Auburn, pastor of the Court Street Baptist church. The following is a condensed report of the address:

"In the erection of a building, as the bricks are laid one upon another, scaffolding are built. The staging has its place in the construction of the building. It is necessary. The building could not be erected without the staging. And yet the staging is not an integral part of the structure. The walls will stand when the planks and joints of the staging are smoke and ashes.

"Bricks and mortar are the essential things. The strength and beauty of the building depends upon the material of which it is reared. Around every life there is more or less staging. Life itself is not a staging. As the scaffolding are not the building, it comes to be a question of bricks and mortar—a question of material—a question of masonry. Nor is it enough to lay bricks one upon another and cover them with untempered mortar—mortar that dries away to sand and not into cement. Said the ancient prophet, 'So will I break down the wall that ye have damped with untempered mortar.'

"I recently saw a monument of failure. Some man had started to build a house without counting the cost. It stood framed and boarded. All around it was staging. It was a weather-beaten and decaying memorial of unrealized expectations. Many lives are like that unfinished building."

After pointing the lesson and giving some excellent counsel as to the way of character building, the speaker took occasion to endorse the athletic sports of schools and colleges, but he insisted upon play being tinged with ambition. "Nothing should be done merely to kill time."

After relating a story of President Roosevelt's cowboy days, the speaker said: "Everybody has more or less to do with his opportunity; Bacon said, 'A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.' It is this idea that I wish to make prominent just now. Life's achievements consist not only in making some kind of an opportunity, but in making the most of every kind of opportunity."

Here the speaker related Beatrice Harraden's story told in "Ships that Pass in the Night," of the old man who toiled up the mountain to reach the temple of knowledge. When he reached it, old and feeble, he was told by the keeper that he had come the wrong road. The temple of knowledge was in the plain, in the midst of the people. "The Temple has always been in the very heart of life's work. The philosopher may enter—the stone-breaker may enter." The speaker here paused to describe the great chariot race as told in "Ben Hur," and in reciting displayed much dramatic talent.

In closing he said: "The present character belongs to the bricks and mortar of life's building. Present character is too often considered but temporary—a staging to be taken down. But the doings and habits of this hour, more or less, make or mar the habits of the next hour. Poor bricks put into the foundation of a building are there and are always an element of danger. It is unsafe to graft the little vices into the young life, thinking they can later be easily removed."

With a few religious admonitions the speaker brought to a close one of the most interesting lectures the people of Rumford Falls have had the pleasure of hearing this season.

Prof. Hathorne made a few remarks appealing to the parents to take a greater interest in the school. His view of commencement day was that no other day in the year was more important to the nation. He revealed a surprising and distressing state of apathy on the part of the parents, by saying that not one parent had visited his schoolroom during the present year. He then called upon Superintendent of Schools, H. J. Chase, who spoke briefly corroborating the statements of the former speaker, and explaining some features of the school curriculum not generally appreciated. He referred at some length to the business course that is provided in the school course, and urged that it be made greater use of. He then presented to each of the six graduates their diplomas.

The Rumford Falls band furnished music for the occasion.

A reception was tendered the graduates at McMenamin Hall later in the evening. A social dance was a feature of the reception program.

Saturday Night Raid.

Saturday night deputies Poor and Elliott dropped in to see what was doing in a Polanders' Club located over the Philip Ash stable on Waldo street. There was plenty doing, and the officers took a leading part in the doing. They seized 11,000 bottles of beer, and it proved to be the undoing of the club.

In the Municipal court Monday morning Judge Stearns imposed a fine of $100 and costs upon each of the following officers of the club. The costs were equally divided between them: Dominack Lankshos, president, and John Samuels posing as steward. They paid.

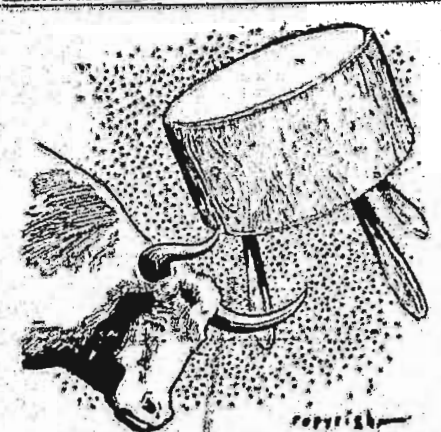

A charge of keeping a nuisance was also laid against them, and on that they were bound over to the October sitting of the grand jury at Paris. They gave securities in the sum of $200 each.

The court room was overfilled and many could not get in. No trial has called out so big a crowd for a long while.

Although the committee appointed to investigate the water supply has not made its report to the assessors, the individual members are each making some effort to discover some feasible plan for purifying the water, and it is expected that some plan will be agreed upon and very soon reported to the assessors, so that the special meeting to act upon the report may be called.

Holyoke, Mass., wanted to go into the ice business, and asked permission of the state to do so. The legislature seeing nothing wrong in the petition, passed it up to Governor Guild. The governor vetoed the proposition on the ground that it would establish a precedent for municipalities engaging in any kind of commercial enterprise. The governor seems to overlook the fact that his office requires him to serve the people and not private business. If the people of any town desire to supply themselves with any commodity, they surely have the right to do so.

There are some old sayings that are so pertinent that they might well be kept in type ready for use upon occasion. "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," is one of them, and applies with great force to the Sunday opening controversy so bitterly carried on in Lewiston.

STURGIS MEN NOT LIKELY TO VISIT RUMFORD FALLS.

The report in the CITIZEN last week that rumors were in the air regarding the possible reinstatement of Sturgis deputies, seems to have had no other cause for being printed than the rumors, and the fact that deputies have been placed recently in several towns in the state. A Sturgis deputy informs us that there is no present possibility of Sturgis men appearing here. The deputy sheriffs seem to be doing their work all right.

Farm land in Maine is destined to bring higher prices in the near future. There are two principal reasons for this prospect. The extension of trolley cars into the remote sections, and the revival of the business of farming. Farming, either general or special, has become a science and the land can be made to yield more than in former times, so that a farmer can have cash in his pocket, and not, as of old, have to trade produce and run yearly bills at the grocery and general stores. Money and labor put into farms is well invested.

The story told by Harry Orchard at the Haywood-Pettibone-Moyes trial in Boise, Idaho, is, without exception, the most horrible revelation of human wickedness that has been made in modern times. The men he has murdered can not be accurately determined, but that many met death at his hand is a fact. That so large a number of intelligent men, as he alleges, were his confederates, staggers belief, and for the benefit of mankind and the labor movement, we hope there will be found no corroboration of his charges against the labor officers.

VOTING CONTEST.

Our readers, noting the absence of any reference to our voting contest during the past few weeks, have doubtless wondered where it is at, and in this connection, we beg to state that there has been no activity, or practically no activity, on the part of any of the contestants for the past six weeks and for this reason we have said nothing about it.

One of the conditions of our contest, as published from week to week, was that the contest would be called off in any class, at any time, when there were not at least two contestants in active work. This provision has made it necessary for us to call it off temporarily, at least, in every class. We will be glad to renew the contest, providing there is shown at once any signs of life on the part of the contestants. Otherwise, it will be called off permanently.

DOLLARS AND CENTS IN A HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION.

Superintendent of Schools, Chase, made some well timed remarks at the graduating exercises in Mexico the evening of June 12th.

He directed his speech to the parents, chiefly, and sought to arouse them to a greater interest in the education of their children. In placing before them the fact that in Mexico an expenditure of fifty dollars per day was required to conduct the schools, he brought home to them the loss that occurred financially to the community when any considerable number of scholars were absent.

He touched effectively upon the worth of an education in dollars and cents, and made very plain that the boy kept out of school to earn a bit of present money was in the end a great financial loser, for the difference in the earning capacity of a boy possessing a high school education, and one having no learning, or very little, was shown to be, at the most conservative estimate, not less than $22,000 for a period of forty years.

SHALL WE CELEBRATE?

A good old time Fourth of July celebration at Rumford Falls would not be limited to its value as a business proposition, but could be made the means of teaching the great lessons of freedom to many of our newly acquired citizens from across the water. The powder and dynamite method of observing the nation's birthday has been carried to an extreme, and while we would not advocate cutting out all the noise, we certainly believe a return to the earlier methods, wherein speeches and patriotic music formed a good feature of the day's exercises, would prove beneficial.

In recent years the principles for which the revolutionary fathers fought have not been taught to the youth and new citizens with the same force as formerly, and the result is that many boys of today do not know the real cause for the Fourth of July being observed in the manner it is. We once asked a fifteen year old lad why he celebrated the Fourth and he could not give an intelligent reason. It developed that he had never heard of the Declaration of Independence—at least he had no remembrance of it.

Some kind of a celebration ought to be arranged for at the Falls. Who will take the matter up?

HALL-WOOSTER.

Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock occurred the marriage of Artell A. Hall of Rumford Falls and Miss Ida Mae Wooster of Portland, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emmeline Wooster. Miss Wooster has made her home during the past few years in Rumford Falls, where she is very popular. Mr. Hall is one of our well known business men. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Hall will reside in their pretty home on Lincoln Avenue.

CATHERINE E. BROOKS.

When a life, in the fullness of time and years, is claimed by death, we bow in sadness, yet we know that death has only taken its due, and even when death reaches out and strikes down one in the prime of life—a life not desirous of laying down the burden; a life that can ill be spared, we are still forced to bow to the mysterious power that holds our destinies, and in deepest sorrow say, "It is well," although why we cannot understand.

These thoughts are suggested by the recent and untimely death of Mrs. Catherine E. Brooks, wife of Frank A. Brooks, of Rumford Falls police force.

Mrs. Brooks was a most estimable woman, in the early prime of life, possessed of sterling womanly qualities and living in the love of a most devoted husband, and her untimely death not only bereaves husband, family and friends, but leaves a vacant place in the church, where she was much appreciated. She was a devoted member of the Methodist church, having joined that society in early life in Halifax, and later becoming a member of the same church demonstration in Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Brooks' maiden name was Meachin. She was born in Boston in 1866, but most of her childhood was spent in Halifax, Nova Scotia. She was married to Frank A. Brooks in Boston, March 1st, 1892, and they lived for some years in that city, where Mr. Brooks was on the police force. She had one child, Jerome F., that died in infancy.

About eight years ago she first became acquainted with the people of Rumford Falls, with whom she was a favorite. Two and a half years ago Mr. Brooks settled here, and he and his wife enjoyed an ideal companionship, and were looking forward to many years of happiness.

The funeral and burial was at Dixfield, where she died, as related in last week's CITIZEN.

Mr. Brooks feels very deeply the loss of his wife, and the sympathy of his many friends is feelingly extended, but they can only hope to divert and lessen the pain for well they know so deep, "a grief can not be gilded with words."

CITIZEN SIGHTSEER.

Visits at Fred B. Carroll's Plumbing Shop. Hears a Comical Conversation in the C. H. McKenzie Store. Saves Toll By Going to Mexico via Swift River Road.

Have you ever visited a plumber's shop? The sightseer has been in many of them, but it is doubtful if he was ever in one that is more completely fitted to do high class work than the shop of our advertiser, Fred B. Carroll, on Canal street. If you wish to know how modern plumbing and steam and hot water fitting is done, go to his shop and let the foreman, Mr. Frank Hutchins, show you around. Many machines and strange looking appliances are required in the work and skillful men to do it are necessary. Mr. Carroll has everything needed, and his corps of efficient workmen have performed some of the finest in this part of the state.

Under the supervision of foreman Hutchins, an expensive system of plumbing is being installed in the camp of S. D. Wise, at Lake Moose-lookmugent. In the old days, and perhaps to most of us now, a camp equipped with elegant bath rooms would not be a camp. The crudeness and inconvenience of a hastily erected camp possessed the necessary fascination to satisfy us, and such a camp as Mr. Carroll is fitting with modern home conveniences would perhaps have spoiled all the fun of camping out. But the modern camp must possess these things now, to be up-to-date, and like many other things that were good enough for the fathers, the crude open camp must go by. Mr. Carroll is away on a special job, and may not return for some weeks, but the business is in charge of Mr. Hutchins who is fully equal to all the requirements of the business.

The following conversation occurred between two men customers in the C. H. McKenzie Mercantile Company store the other day. The fact that they were not women is self evident, for no woman outside of Chicago ever admits having big feet.

The two customers were buying shoes, and one, the elder of the two, said, "I get shoes for comfort and not style," at the same time extending his foot with a common sense shoe on it, for the other's inspection. The second man responded, "I couldn't wear shoes for style if I wanted to," and to prove it he soberly projected to the public gaze a foot of such monstrous size that the humor of the situation caught all the on-lookers and a good laugh was indulged in.

The day being pleasant and the sightseer needing a sunbath, he took a foot trip into Mexico and Ridonville, going via of Swift river bridge to avoid paying toll—some may not believe this statement, but it is true that toll was avoided. A call of half an hour at Henry W. Park's at Mexico Corner was profitably spent, in that some general information was obtained as well as a pleasant time enjoyed. The post office seems to be a general information bureau, for in the few minutes the sightseer was there no less than six persons came for some kind of information, regarding persons or localities. The last to call was the stage driver, who asked if Mr. Park knew any person named "Fern Woods." No, said Mr. Park with a twinkling eye, but sober face, but I know several different wood ferns.

Bert Barber, of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your Kidney and Bladder Pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, which are unequalled for Backache, weak kidneys, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles. A week's treatment for 25c. There is no case of indigestion, no matter how irritable or how obstinate that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kodol. The main factor in curing the stomach of any disorder is rest, and the only way to get rest is to actually digest the food for the stomach itself. Kodol will do it. It is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids containing the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It conforms to the Fare Food and Drugs Law. Sold by Bowers & Vallee Co.

AT THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

Sights and Sensations Which Await the Deep Ocean Diver.

The bottom of the sea is a region full of mystery for all but the very few who either have made diving their profession or have put on the helmet in the cause of science.

One of the latter class furnishes to the Lady's Realm some very curious photographs which he himself took under water. He says that such pictures can be made with any excellent camera having an unusually luminous optic by enclosing it in a watertight case, capable also of resisting the pressure of the water.

The submarine scenery, as he calls it, is never still enough to give satisfactory results from a time exposure, but instantaneous pictures are made by the light given by fireworks burning under a crystal bell glass filled with compressed oxygen. The best results are obtained by this method when the waters are absolutely dark at night.

The effect of such a light is wonderful. The bottom of the sea looks like fairyland. Hosts of fishes, attracted by the light, gleam like gold and silver, while the transparent jellyfish move slowly through the glowing water like bells of opal.

The beauty of the sight is increased by an infinite number of minute gas bubbles which cover the seaweed, and in the illuminated water have the appearance of innumerable diamonds and myriads of delicate pearls.

On going down into the sea the diver soon enters a kind of twilight which envelops him like a thick mist. The sky and the clouds, which may be seen at the beginning of the dive, soon fade and disappear. The sun alone remains visible to a great depth, like a small reddish disc through the green and blue films of water.

At the bottom objects seem scarier and larger than in reality and appear under a color other than their own; for the rays of light traversing a thickness of green and blue water which absorbs them unequally, as the red rays, for instance, are extinguished long before the blue, a white rock appears blue, a red animal black.

Another phenomenon, which never fails to excite surprise at first, is to see night settling in completely at the bottom at the same moment in which at the surface it is broad day.

In illustration it is customary to depict divers walking upright on the bottom of the sea; it is not so in reality.

Just as a cyclist bends over his handle bar in order to overcome the resistance of the wind, the submarine walker is obliged, if he wishes to advance, to bend stoutly forward. Besides, his body takes this slanting position instinctively, which he could not assume on land without falling.

At first, you are not able to regulate your motions according to the resistance to be overcome, or you are inclined to overrate it, and you impart to your action a suddenness more detrimental than useful, and which fatigues to no purpose. On trying to seize a plant or a zoophyte, the hand either seizes it where it is not or crushes it roughly; and, if one endeavors to surmount an obstacle, the effort you make carries you four times as high as necessary.

If water as a medium, has its drawbacks, it has its advantages, too. The diver can regulate its density at will and effect downright feats of strength. Thus it is child's play to him, merely by using his finger ends and his toes, without danger of falling, to climb up or down perpendicular rocks or dizzy precipices; to remain under water or rise like a balloon rapidly to the surface.

It is generally believed that marine plants keep perfectly upright in the midst of the water, and a celebrated writer has said: "At the bottom of the sea the vertical reigns." This assertion is incorrect. The seaweeds have never appeared to me to affect this position in a more marked degree than our land plants do. Like the latter, in calm places they spread out and bend their branches.

An inexperienced observer having descended to marine ground might believe that the life there is comprised in the fish that pass rapidly before the windows of his helmet and the crustaceans that escape from under his feet; but he who stops and looks closely is astounded by the number and diversity of the beings that hide under every stone and swarm on the rocks or among the grasses.

One has not to walk long on the bottom of the sea before meeting with objects recalling the things of the surface, and the treachery of these billows, so calm in appearance. Now it is a long chain trailing across the seaweed, now an anchor or propeller half buried in slime, a chest, a barrel, a piece of a mast or rigging.

Covered with a layer of plants or mollusks, these wrecks have taken the general color of the surrounding soil, and only their forms reveal them. But sometimes a great dark wall all at once becomes visible through the transparent mass, and soon one distinguishes in it the tail hull of a wrecked vessel.

If the sinking of the vessel has been sudden, if it is of recent date, if a large branch cables one at the moment with the luminous rays of submarine lamp to peer in the side of the ill-fated vessel, one often recoils in horror from the scenes which are

one. The glaucous color of the place, its sinister calm give such intense to these mournful pictures that, spite of oneself one flies from it, the mad desire to ascend forever to surface, detesting the pitiless creator of such horrors; but at paces, see how one's eyes fall on radiant forms of the lives it supports and forget the ugliness of its death.

Outside the professional divers, which to contemplate the submarine world, very few people have done the diving dress and braved the dangers of compressed air. In the future it will be so no longer. The armor victoriously resisting the pressure throws open wide depths now inaccessible.

AUTO SCARES HORSE ON FALLS HILL.

Frightened Horse Collides with Team and Two Women
are Badly Hurt.

Saturday forenoon about 10:30, an automobile was coming down the Falls hill when the operator noticed a junk team approaching with the driver wildly waving his hand. The auto was brought to a standstill about 80 feet from the team. The men in the car say that the teamster, Isaac Levi-son, threw down the reins in sheer fright and rolled off the wagon, leaving the horse to navigate as fear dictated. The horse turned about and started down the hill on the run, within a few rods colliding with a carriage in which were riding Mrs. Daniel Shea and Mrs. Harry Capen, both residents of Smith's Crossing. Their carriage was upset and the women were thrown to the ground. Mrs. Shea was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to Hall's stable, and Dr.
Hutchins called. Mrs. Shea soon regained consciousness, and is not thought to be dangerously hurt, although she received bad wounds upon her head, face and hands. A cot bed was provided and her wounds were dressed at the stable, after which she was taken to her home. Her husband was summoned and was present and assisted in caring for her.

Mrs. Capen, who was fortunate in escaping with no serious hurts, was taken home immediately after the accident.

The junk team and the carriage were wrecked. So far as the CITIZEN can learn, no blame is attached to the men in the automobile.

LATER.

Mrs. Capen was found to have sustained a dislocation of the hip, but not otherwise much injured.

MEXICO H. S. GRADUATION.

The Mexico High School commencement exercises were held in the Congregational church on the evening of June 12th. The church was well filled. After an invocation by Rev.
Harold Hanson, Prin. Thomas C. Chaf-tee introduced as the first speaker of the evening, Rev. Smith Baker of Portland. Dr. Baker has an interesting personality and is an orator of impressive power and logical construction, and those who heard this address were highly edified. We regret that we cannot give the event greater space.

Dr. Baker said that the value of things was entirely in their possibilities, and illustrated by saying that a ball of mud and an acorn were different only in their possibilities. The mud would remain mud, but the acorn would grow into a great tree. Holding out his hands he appeared to hold two germs, saying, "These little germs are alike so far as the eye can detect, yet
the possibilities of one may be a mouse
and the other a Gladstone."

He continued this style of illustration, and explained that things only grow as they absorb and give out, and brought home to the boys and girls present the fact that unless they "took in" they would have nothing to "give out." He showed them that the human brain is a sensitive organism, and capable of receiving much and giving out much, and that through the means of constant study the mind
can be stored with useful knowledge that it can give out as long as life lasts. He outlined the growth of the protoplasm, and told the boys and girls that human life perfected its development in the same way.

He spoke of the affectional and the intellectual life, saying that things done from a sense of duty were of but little value—the things done at the behest of love were the great and worth-while things of life.

He concluded this part of the address by saying, "The great men and women of the world are those who love many. The larger the family a woman has the larger love she has.
Everything is subject to growth, and human beings grow to meet the demands upon them."

In urging the boys and girls to take
at least a high school course, he said,
"A man is what his greatest thought is. As the germ I first spoke of reproduces itself, so do thoughts reproduce and grow on growing and reproducing through all eternity. Culture is not character, and life is not worth living without growth."

Dr. Baker closed his able dissertation by giving to the boys and girls a brief outline of the early lives of Abraham Lincoln and Henry Wilson.
Superintendent Chase was then introduced and made a few pointed remarks
in an exceptionally impressive style.
We have referred to them in the editorial column, but have too limited space to give a report here. At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Chase presented a diploma to Everett Bradeen, and explained that illness

ELEVENTH MAINE FESTIVAL

The official announcement of the list of soloists who, in addition to Madame 'Alve, are to appear at the Eleventh Annual Maine Festival at Portland,
October 7, 8 and 9, was made Saturday.
They are all new artists except Clifford Wiley, who was liked so much last year. Mr. Wiley will appear in the opening concert in Hilliers' "Song of Victory." The first matinee will be in two parts; the first orchestral, and the second a song recital for Cecil Fanning. Miss Rosa Eaton, a charming young soprano, will appear at the second matinee with the Junior Festival chorus. The special feature of the Festival is to be the production of the opera of "Samson and Delilah," composed by Camille Saint-Saens. The opera presents three great solo roles in addition to the minor solo parts, and the opportunity for orchestra and chorus. For these three important roles, Prof. Chapman has secured three great artists, whose conception and rendition of these parts have made them peculiarly their own: Janet Spencer as Delilah, Daniel Bedloe as Samson, Cecil Fanning in the role of the High Priest. This work is to be given on the 73rd birthday of the composer, and Saint-Saens is now hoping to honor the occasion by his presence.

A VILLAGE WITHIN A VILLAGE.

A Hustling Settlement near Strathglass Park.

The Business and the Social Life in Review.

The town of Rumford Falls has seven postoffices, and within the limits of the great village at the Falls are several small settlements that are large enough to have postoffices, and do not.

The principal one is on the west side of the river and is known as "Waldo Street." To the person coming to the Falls by any of the regularly travelled roads this section is not seen and many come and go without knowing anything of it.

Starting from the island the route to Waldo street is by the way of the foot bridge, and to a stranger this bridge and attendant scenery makes an interesting experience and view. After crossing the bridge, which gives one the sensation of treading the deck of a sailing vessel, the traveler finds himself in a little grove of trees, and just in front can be seen the Carnegie library. To get to Waldo street we keep to the right, on the plank walk, following the river.

The bank of the river here is steep and grows steeper every rod, until it becomes a gorge or narrow valley into which one looks with a degree of fascination, hearing that which entrances the traveler in the mountains and valleys of Switzerland. Rumford Avenue bends to the river course and when it is reached we continue our journey on that street, passing Strathglass Park on the southeast side. We follow this avenue until just ahead we see what appears to be a foot path leading into a wood, and just as we make up our minds that the end of the journey is to be on the yonder side of this wood, we are attracted by sounds, and turning our eyes to the left we behold "Waldo Street."

It is a surprising view that spreads before us, for here is a village containing fifteen or more stores, shops and business places. The buildings are all new, and as we pass from store to store we find them to be superior, in some respects, to many old time village stores. They are nicely fitted as a rule and well stocked with merchandise of all kinds.

The street runs to Lincoln Avenue and is nearly half a mile long but what is usually meant by "Waldo Street" is the business section which extends perhaps less than an eighth of a mile.

In the short length of the street there is much bustle and stir and a large amount of business is done. The business men are progressive and up-to-date, and nearly all belong to the merchants' association of Rumford Falls, and are thoroughly alive to the needs of the town, and willing to contribute to its welfare in every possible way.

"Waldo Street" is comparatively new, and it has had a remarkable growth, but everything points to its continued expansion, and it is among the possibilities that it will some day be claiming to be the center of business.

This issue of the CITIZEN contains the advertisements of nearly all the business men of the street, and give the readers a comprehensive idea of the business importance of "Waldo Street."

The first store to be seen as we approach the street, is not situated on Waldo street, but is a part of "the street" so far as business goes.

The store is a confectionery, cigar and tobacco store, with ice cream and soda as a feature for summer. J. Cote is the proprietor, and the location is on Main Avenue, near the Waldo street corner.

Simeon Laroche has a quick lunch room and restaurant combined, and it is the first business place on the right side of the street as we enter the village. He has a double store and does a large business.

Next comes the grocery and market kept by Roderick and Company. This is a store with an immense stock and a large patronage—in fact the volume of business done by this up and coming firm is as large as that of any similar business in town. They have special facilities for the care and distribution of meats, and have a constantly increasing trade in that line.

Amid Joseph's store is full of dry goods and notions and he advertises to sell at low prices. The store is new and well fitted.

The barber shop and pool room kept by Willie Prevest is next on that side of the street. He has recently enlarged the place and it is as pleasant a store as the street affords.

Joseph Marcoux has for three years kept a shoe store and done repairing. He has now branched out, enlarged his store and added a line of new clothing.

"The 'Waldo Street' Cafe" is one of the big institutions of the street.

It is now being renovated and enlarged, and will present a modern appearance in which the proprietors as well as the customers will take pride.

The Borden Company, dealers in furniture, have the last store on the west side. They occupy the main floor and basement, and carry a complete and high grade line of furniture and household goods. Their upholstery department is a busy place. Be sure and read their advertisement.

On the opposite side of the street going back we first notice the cigar factory of J. J. Leary. He employs several hands and makes fine cigars. He also has a pool room.

George Elias has the next store—it is stocked from floor to ceiling with fancy goods and notions.

S. E. Fraser conducts a fancy chair barber shop on that side of the street. One of the most attractive stores is the confectionery and ice cream parlor conducted by Mercier and Mercier.

The firm is new and the store is also brand new. It is as up-to-date as any place of the kind can be. They have a special table and chairs in the ice cream parlor for the use of small children. It is a convenient and attractive feature.

Philip Ash, the well known horseman, has just built a new and large stable, and has everything to make a first class livery and sale stable. He also deals in new carriages. He has good teams and treats his patrons to good service.

Fred Bernier has a barber shop in the first building on that side of the street. A good clean shop.

Just in the rear of this building is located one of the best bakery shops in the town. Louis N. Talbot, whose teams go all over the surrounding country, owns and operates it. He is soon to establish another shop at 210 Pine street. "Wherever you live you will find it convenient to trade with him."

Aside from the business life of "Waldo Street" there is a well developed social life, principally centering around the Club de Lafayette. This association has a very nice club room and is one of the important organizations of the town. Altogether it is doubtful if any town in the state has more villages and postoffices than Rumford, and it is sure that for a village within a village "Waldo Street" has no equal.
